

ALEXANDRIA, VA

FRIDAY EVENING, DEC. 1, 1882.

Some of the Washington preachers availed themselves of yesterday's opportunity to express their opinions upon public matters and that putting his live pigs in a wagon, of present interest, and, in doing so, plainly and tying his cow on behind, he set out for showed that they have mistaken their calling, and that their election is by no means sure. One of these, Rev. C. Herbert Richardson, openly defended the star routers, and denounced the Attorney General, saying "he was a litter occupant of a felon's cell than to preside over the department of justice." He also denounced the half-breed members of his party, saying he "condemned to the legislature of the State for U. S. Senator, but that he will be unable to get enough democratic votes to elect him. The small democratic majority in the Legislature will make a democratic course processor and that men who seek to disrupt party organization under the cry of bossism." Another one, Kenner, member of the present House and Rev. Mr. Rankin, berated Massachusetts member elect of the next one, as Mr. Davis for the way she voted at the recent election. saying she is "trying to get rid of a worthy successor of such men as Webster, and Sumner, and Wilson, and has just lifted up another man, twice or thrice rejected by her, into a position where he is trying to bring his office to bear on the Presidential chair of 1884." What with preachers who boldly confess disbelief in the Bible as an inspired book, and those who; while still professing Christianity, preach unchristian doctrines, the modern church has a great deal to contend with.

One boat, containing the chief officer, engineer and twelve men, arrived safe at Canso yesterday, while another, with Captain Fritz, his wife, a lady passenger and the rest of the crew is missing. The Cedar Grove was a new vessel of the New Brunswick Steamship Company, and was only on her second trip between London and Halifax and St. John. She was valued at $150,000, and insured for $130,000. The latest report is that one lifeboat and nineteen persons are still missing. It is not known how many succeeded in getting in the first boat. In the confusion of the moment some were seen to jump overboard, and others were washed off when the bows of the ship swallowed. The ship remained above water three hours after striking, but as she now lies she is visible only at low water. Later information shows that three boats were launched shortly after the vessel struck, two of which, containing thirteen people, reached the shore safely. The remaining boat has not been heard from, and it is feared she has been lost in the breakers.

A Dael Probable. A special dispatch to the Baltimore American from Richmond, last night says: "No little excitement has been created in this city this evening by the publication in the Oran State, in its Washington correspondence, of man well-known and highly esteemed a letter by Captain W. Page McCarthy, throughout the county, was brutally mur- which shows that United States Senator H. dered by a colored man named Joe Wilson. H. Riddleberger will have to fight a duel with Captain McCarthy, or back down from his position of upholding of the code as the medium of settling differences between gentionen. The origin of this trouble is understood to be as follows: Some weeks since Captain McCarthy, in his Washington latter to the State manufaced that Secretary letter to the State, mentioned that Senator Riddleberger had been whipped by Captain Rockbridge Dandridge, of Winchester, on the occasion A few days since a Shenandoah weekly, of which Riddleberger is understood to be the owner and editor, commented editorially upon the letters in the State signed "M," and said they were Smyth. written by Captain McCarthy. It averred that the statement therein, to the effice that Stafford. Dandridge had whipped Riddleberger, was untre, and proceeded to allude to Captain McCarthy as a man of dueling notoriety, specifying his connection with the lamented McCarthy-Mordecai duel of some years ago, in which Captain McCarthy was desperately wounded and his autagonist killed. The State's Washington letter, published this evening, written by Captain McCarthy, says: Riddleberger, in imitation of his master, has an organ, in which the alleged gamecock advertises himself and abuses his Alexandria, enemies, and he has been lately denying that Captain Dandridge whipped him at Lynchburg, Winchester. It was not expected that after being denounced as a poltroon and beaten, Norfolk, to emphasize the epithet, that Mr. Riddleberger could give a purely disinter-ested account of the affair. It was natural Richmond, that he should be prejudiced, and his moral and intellectual optic was in as bad a Williamsburg, condition as his physical eye when he proceeded in the 'organ' to deny the statements in the newspapers which represented him by his accepted synonyms. Mr. Riddleberger seems to be unaware of the fact that honorable men do not answer insults by abuse, and that he, after having beasted of the challenges he has sent, has merely imitated the school boys, who says You are another, when they quarrel over marbles. His reference to a duel is unfor-Essex tunate, for it recalls his own brilliant performance in challenging a gentleman and taking advantage of an accident to run from the satisfaction he had demanded, and make such a ridiculous display of his yaunted chivalry that Bob Acres was eclipsed and a new exemplar of braggart and poltrom established in the person of Captain Harry Northampton Riddleberger, the alleged gamecock of the Shenandoah. When, by whiskey and per-Richmond suasion, he was gotten to another field of Spotsylvania gore, his behavior excited the pity of his adversary, and the statement of his ludicrous bearing, made by me in the editorial of a Washington paper, passed without con-tradiction or denial. Mr. Riddleberger's imi tation of General Mahone lacks two important features which practice cannot possibly supply. General Mahone was a brave soldier, and is a man of brains. His little imitator and coat-tail attachment has only the slouch bat." Alexandria county

It chances that Senator Riddleberger is now in Richmond, and the State has the following significant paragraph at the head of its editorial column :

"Captain Page McCarthy is visiting a friend near the city.' It is surmised that Captain McCarthy is hid near the city in order to give Mr. Rid- Madison dieberger every opportunity to get satisfaction for the deep insult Captain McCarthy has placed upon him in the letter; and a duel is looked for. Mr. Riddleberger, a year ago, fought a bloodless duel with Congressman George D. Wise, and had accepted a challenge to fight Mr. R. F. Beirne, editor of the State, on the same day: but owing to Total 27. an accident by which the caps were forgot-ten, the latter duel hid not take place-Mr. Riddleberger declining to wait until they could be procured. It is to these duels that Captain McCarthy refers in his letter. Serious trouble is anticipated."
